Excerpt: .the company acquire by purchase the plaintiffs interest in the entire lot, or the portion of it upon which the tracks were laid. To this the company s counsel replied by letter of the 28th of April, 1882, that while the books of the city departments indicated that the damages awarded for the portion of the plaintiffs lot had not been paid, yet that the same books showed that the defendant had made all payments required of it by the ordinance, and that in his opinion the plaintiffs claim should be against the city and not against the railroad company. Counsel may have been mistaken in this view of the law, but there is nothing to show that he acted in bad faith, or that the company, in continuing to use the land under his advice, after the receipt of the letter from the...
