Excerpt: . . . and a steady man--specially when I can keep fro drink; and that I shall do now, if I neer did afore. That you may have more money laid up for another strike, I suppose No! Id be thankful if I was free to do that; its for to keep th widow and childer of a man who was drove mad by them knobsticks o yourn; put out of his place by a Paddy that did na know weft fro warp. Well! youd better turn to something else, if youve any such good intention in your head. I shouldnt advise you to stay in Milton: youre too well known here. If it were summer, said Higgins, Id take to Paddys work, and go as a navvy, or haymaking, or summut, and neer see Milton again. But its winter, and th childer will clem. A pretty navvy youd make! why, you couldnt do half a days work at digging against an Irishman. Id only charge half-a-day for th twelve hours, if I could only do half-a-days work in th time. Yore not knowing of any place, where they could gi me a trial, away fro the mills, if Im such a firebrand Id take any wage they thought I was worth, for the sake of those childer. Dont you see what you would be Youd be a knobstick. Youd be taking less wages than the other labourers--all for the sake of another mans children. Think how...
