Blackett, F. C. S. Read August 11, 1887. The opening of the Fishermans-bend Canal, in accordance with Sir J. Goodes plan, would seem to have caused a great change in the character of the water in the Yarra-river. In 1884, Mr. Newbery made some determinations of the amount of chlorine in the water. The quantity has much increased even on the surface, but at the bottom it is now as fully charged with salt as the water of Hobsons Bay on the surface at low tide, or indeed more so. There are several points of interest in considering the differing amounts of chlorine at high and low...
